Hibiscus rosa-sinensis The Chinese (or Tropical) Hibiscus

"Myella"
"William Stewart"
"Lasca Beauty"
Introduced, November 1968

Botanists and gardeners have long been captivated by the ornamental hibiscus, H.rosa-sinensis. Its talent for producing exciting hybrids (to date, over one thousand) has also produced a multitude of hibiscus hybridizer hobbyists. Ross H. Gast, a self described "dour Scotch gardener," became a research associate at the Los Angeles State and County Arboretum in 1958, and was responsible for the three hibiscus that were introduced in November, 1968.

The hibiscus, H.rosa-sinensis, has a wide distribution in China, India, Southeast Asia and the Pacific Islands. No wild hibiscus has survived in any of these countries, and, until a fossil was discovered in India, China was presumed the place of origin. Hibiscus flowers, with flaring petals and a long protruding column of stamens are spectacular. The blossoms are both single and double and measure from

Leonard Tharp to be Designer-in-Residence at the Arboretum

Leonard Tharp

Leonard Tharp, noted floral designer and author will launch an exciting new year of programs at the Arboretum. Tharp's presentation at the Arboretum in late February will mark his first appearance on the West Coast. As the Arboretum's designer-in-residence, Tharp will present a series of lectures and workshops on the art of flower arranging over a period of 2 weeks. The California Arboretum Foundation is proud to present this unique opportunity for both industry professionals and dedicated amateurs.

For years a dynamic speaker in horticultural circles, Mr. Tharp has been especially active on the lecture circuit since the 1986 publication of his book, Leonard Tharp: An American Style of Flower Arrangement. His floral boutique, Leonard Tharp, Inc. was an acclaimed success in Houston, Texas until Mr. Tharp closed the shop to relocate in the Washington D.C. area. There he established the Leonard Tharp Conservatory of Floral Art, which holds regular symposia sponsored by the American Horticultural Society at its National Headquarters, River Farm.

Mr. Tharp's classes at the Arboretum are scheduled for February 21, 22, 27 and 28. Participants may choose to attend morning lectures or all-day workshops with Mr. Tharp. A broad spectrum of topics will be covered with each day providing a wealth of practical information as well as a higher appreciation of the natural world. Workshops, limited to 15, will offer participants the exciting opportunity to create their own floral design working directly with Mr. Tharp.

Invitations for Mr. Tharp's series will be mailed in early January. Subjects for the lectures and workshops will be included in the registration materials. For further information, please contact the Foundation Office at (818) 447-8207. Mr. Tharp's book is currently available at the Arboretum Gift Shop, (818) 447-8751.

Board Notes from Alice Frost Thomas, President

When the days get shorter and the leaves begin to change color, it's big holiday time – Thanksgiving followed by Christmas and New Year's Day. It is a time to be thankful for Dr. Samuel Ayres, Jr., whose idea it was to bring more color (flowers, leaves, bark, berries) to the Southern California landscape and founded the Arboretum to do it, for the staff who have made his ideas grow, for the countless hours donated by our volunteers, for our members and donors who make the otherwise unattainable possible.

The best party of the season was held on Saturday, December 2, for Gardening students and their parents. Lettuce, beets, carrots and radishes were harvested to take home as well as rooted cuttings from the Children's Discovery Garden. Workbooks that included planting charts, growing schedules and pictures of the progress of their garden plots, photographed by each student, were admired. Awards were given to all class participants. It was a bountiful day and Wendy Sekovich, Arboretum Education Specialist, is to be congratulated for creating and teaching this wonderful and imaginative introductory gardening class.

It is also a time to look forward. Expansion of our education classes will become a reality when new classrooms are available by way of the Master Plan capital campaign. Renovation of the Peacock Pavilion Café will start early in the new year, funded by gifts to the Foundation. There are three plant sales scheduled for 1990: a Valentine Sale on February 10th; the 20th Baldwin Bonanza Sale on May 6th with a preview party for members on the 5th; a summer plant sale on June 23rd. It is a good idea to put those dates on your calendar now so you do not miss our specialties and bargains. Plans are well underway for our first Midsummer Night's Dream Party on June 22nd, chaired by trustee Fred Schoellkopf. He has enlisted many other board members to help and they are promising an evening of fun that will rival any party ever given by 'Lucky' Baldwin. More about it in future newsletters.

We wish you a Happy New Year.

Garland Orchid House Dedicated

The opening of the Arboretum's new state-of-the-art orchid house was celebrated with a daylong Orchid Symposium on the grounds in September. Named in memory of Blanche Hinman Garland, the Orchid House demonstrates the Garland family's long involvement with the Arboretum.

The Blanche Hinman Garland Orchid House is the first Master Plan project that has been implemented as a result of the $12,000,000 campaign for the Los Angeles State and County Arboretum. The $150,000 grant to construct the Orchid House was provided by a local foundation that wishes to remain anonymous.

The Garland Orchid House is a 4500 square-foot structure with walls and ceiling of Dynaglass, a polycarbonated plastic made by Paltough. The Dynaglass is designed to last 20 years without breaking or discoloring and allows the maximum amount of light necessary for the plants to manufacture food. On bright days, a motorized screen is available to filter out 65 percent of the sunlight. A Cool Cell cooling system replaces all the air in the greenhouse once a minute and helps to maintain the humidity level. Growing space has also been gained through the installation of galvanized steel rolling benches. This eliminates the need for permanent aisles.

The Arboretum maintains one of the largest diversified collections of orchids. The Garland Orchid House will hold the majority of the species collection, thus alleviating the congestion problem in the other greenhouses. Orchidist Earl Ross, who oversees the entire collection, will also use the new facility to propagate seedlings. The increase in the number of seedlings will facilitate our plant exchanges with other botanical gardens.

Ross is also interested in collecting new plant material for the Arboretum. His travels have taken him to Brazil, tropical Asia, China and Malaysia. He obtains first-hand information by observing the orchid plants growing in their natural habitat, thus greatly assisting his cultivation efforts at LASCA.

Arboretum Orchidist Earl Ross discusses the orchid collection with visitors during the Orchid Symposium.

Oak Tree Foundation Continues Support of Arbor Day Program

The Oak Tree Foundation has continued their generous support of the Arboretum's Arbor Day program with a grant of $4500. The program provides instruction and experience in environmental education and conservation for thousands of elementary school children in Los Angeles County.

Through the Arbor Day program, live trees are provided to approximately 700 elementary schools. Curriculum materials are also distributed to each participating school. The "hands-on" experience children receive while planting a tree on the school grounds is designed to emphasize the importance of man's relationship to plant life.

With the ongoing support of the Oak Tree Foundation, the Arboretum has been able to build an excellent educational program for local school children.

Come Along With Me

A trip to the March 1990 Philadelphia Flower Show affords a marvelous opportunity to include visits to other "not to be missed" sites. Working with Hospitality Philadelphia Style, an organization that promotes the flower show and depends heavily on local volunteers to make visits a success, a 4 nights and 3 1/2 days itinerary has been arranged exclusively for members of the California Arboretum Foundation and their guests.

To briefly summarize the highlights:

- We will be staying at a great Victorian landmark hotel in the historic area, the Independence Park Inn. There are only 36 guest rooms, all with high ceilings.

- An expertly guided tour of "Flowers in Art" at the Philadelphia Museum of Art.

- Lunch in a private home in the Chestnut Hill area.

- A visit to the home and garden of Ernesta and Fred Ballard. Ernesta was the head of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society for many years, is largely responsible for the excellence of the flower show, has been honored by many horticultural societies for her contributions.

- a visit to the Morris Arboretum, a 175 acre estate.

- a welcome dinner at a private club.

- a visit to the Barnes Foundation, a gallery housing 1,000 paintings including works by Picasso, Renoir, Cezanne and Matisse, formerly a private home.

- Lunch at City Tavern, reconstructed on the spot where Washington, Jefferson, Franklin et al relaxed as they discussed the problems of the day.

- preview party and dinner at the flower show - opening night! Black tie for the men. Cocktail dresses for the ladies.

- a day in the Brandywine Valley including visits to Winterthur Museum and Gardens and Longwood Gardens.

- Lunch at the Chadds Ford Inn.

- a visit to the home of noted herb specialist Joanna Reed. She will prepare dinner for us using herbs from her own garden.

- an early morning (pre-public opening) behind-the-scenes tour of the Philadelphia Garden Show - an excellent time to take photographs.

Dates, facts and costs:

Plan to arrive in Philadelphia by Thursday evening, March 8, 1990. Touring with Hospitality Philadelphia Style begins Friday at 9:30 a.m. and doesn't end until you want to say farewell to the flower show on Monday, March 12th.

- $525 includes all admissions, tour busses and guides, 3 lunches, 2 dinners and a $50 contribution to the California Arboretum Foundation.

- $700 will include all of the above and add the Philadelphia Flower Show Preview Dinner to your itinerary.

- You are responsible for the cost of your transportation to Philadelphia and from the airport to your hotel and vice versa, and your hotel room.

Independence Park Inn rates:

Double occupancy $109

Single $99

(Includes complementary European breakfast and afternoon tea.)

Since these days in Philadelphia have been specifically arranged for us with visits to private houses and gardens, even a dinner cooked by herb specialist Joanna Reed, we must have your fee, $525 or $700, by January 15th. For a more detailed description of the places we will visit, what we will see, stop by the Foundation Office and ask to see the folder sent by Hospitality Philadelphia Style. I tested their hospitality at the time of the 1988 Philadelphia Flower Show and gave it 4 stars. This promises to be even better as it is more extensive and planned just for CAF members and guests.

There will be a New York Flower Show from March 3 to 11 and a Massachusetts Flower Show (Boston) March 10 to 18. I am planning to extend my trip to one or both. If you are interested, there is a place to check on the enclosed reservation form. It is easy to go by train. The largest additional cost would be for hotel rooms, especially in New York City.

two to fourteen inches in diameter. They display an incredible array of color — from white to pure yellow, through orange, rose, violet, purple to brown. In California, the plants grow from four to fifteen feet in height; in the tropics, they can be tree-like at thirty feet.

The hibiscus is a member of the mallow family that includes plants of economic value, such as okra and hemp, as well as ornamental shrubs. Hawaii features the exotic beauty as its state flower. The Chinese and East Indians find practical uses for the hibiscus. In India, they polish their shoes with the petals.

In spite of domestic applications, the blossom has been dubbed "Queen of Tropical Flowers." In the tradition of royalty, portraits of the hibiscus hang in two galleries in England. The earliest portrait, made in the 1770s, hangs in the British Museum. The other portraits, commissioned in 1810 by a tea merchant, are water colors painted by a Chinese artist. These hang in the Lindley Library of the Royal Horticultural Society.

These beautiful flowers excited all who travelled the trade routes. In 1753 they were described by botanist Linnaeus. By the end of the 19th century they were introduced to the greenhouses of Europe. As early as 1820, propagation became a significant and rewarding interest. In 1868, hybridization, a hobby of the wealthy plantation owners in Hawaii, eventually made Hawaii the acknowledged leader in research and experience in the field.

Such enthusiasm captured the interest of Ross H. Gast, who went to Hawaii as a young man in the 1930s to escape the depression. There he worked with A.B. Bush, a compulsive hibiscus pollen duster. In addition, he sought out old Japanese gardeners to learn the techniques of pollination developed on the plantations in the past century.

Mr. Gast returned to California in the forties to make his fortune with a simple invention, the paper and wire "twistems." This provided him with the leisure and income to pursue his passion, hibiscus hybridizing. He purchased a greenhouse, when he realized that a controlled atmosphere was necessary to successfully hybridize hibiscus in California. His work included building a bibliography on hibiscus, making a collection of old varieties and true species, and developing a program to produce hardier hibiscus for the nursery trade of Southern California. In 1958, when he became affiliated with the Arboretum, he was the leading authority in the field of hibiscus hybridization.

Members' Lecture Series

"New Old Roses" is the title of the first lecture in the Members' Lecture Series sponsored by the California Arboretum Foundation. Clair G. Martin III will present the illustrated lecture on Sunday, February 4, at 3:00 p.m. in the Arboretum's Lecture Hall.

Clair G. Martin is presently Curator of the Rose Garden at the Huntington Botanical Gardens, where he maintains an historical collection of some 1800 different cultivars of roses. Martin is an official judge for the All-America Rose Selections Test Garden at the Huntington and serves as Chairman for the Huntington Symposium on Old Roses. An outstanding speaker, Clair has lectured on roses in the United States, Canada, Bermuda, Australia and New Zealand.

Entomologist, J. Harold Mitchell, owner of Mitchell Pest Control in San Gabriel, will be our guest lecturer on Monday evening, March 5, at 7:30 p.m. "Recollections on the Oak by a Practicing Arborist," is the topic of his illustrated presentation.

Reservations are necessary and may be made on the reservation form in the Special Events section of this newsletter. Tickets are $5 for Foundation members and $10 for non-members.

Children's Education Program

The Arboretum Children's Education Program will offer the class "Drawing Nature" for the Winter term. Teacher Pat Brame will present instruction in basic drawing techniques using watercolor, pen and ink, and colored pencils. The children will have a close look at nature by drawing from live plant material.

The class will meet on Tuesdays from 3:30 to 5:00 p.m. Students ages 7-9 will meet January 9 - January 30. Students ages 10-12 will meet February 6 - February 27. The class enrollment is limited to 10.

For further information and registration, please contact Wendy Sekovich, Education Specialist, at 818-446-8251 ext.49.

Gift Shop News

In conjunction with our Members' Lecture Series, the Arboretum Gift Shop will feature the following books on roses:

Ikebana Lecture

Reiko Kawamura will present an Ikebana demonstration on Monday, February 12 at 10:00 a.m. at the Las Vols general meeting in Ayres Hall. She is a Master Teacher of the Ohara School. All Foundation members are invited to attend the presentation. Please call Dorothy Murset at 818-286-3766 for a reservation.

Over the last six hundred years, Ikebana has become one of Japan's traditional art forms, originating with floral offerings as part of the Buddhist ritual. Later, it reached perfection as a popular art form. As time passed, Ikebana forms changed, and many schools of Ikebana developed.

Unshin Ohara founded the Ohara School in the late 1800s, when Japan opened to the West. He created - actually designed and produced its low, flat and broad surface containers - the Moribana style, which later led to the School's introduction of the Landscape Arrangement depicting natural scenery and also the Rimpa Style Arrangement based on traditional Rimpa paintings.

Ohara School Ikebana has two basic forms: Moribana and Heika. Moribana employs flat, shallow containers; Heika, tall, thin ones. Beginners must master certain styles basic to both Moribana and Heika.

Membership in Las Voluntarias y Los Ayudantes is open to interested Foundation members. For further information about volunteer opportunities at the Arboretum, please contact Patricia Bergen, the volunteer coordinator at 818-446-8251.

Trustee Fred Schoellkopf (l) demonstrates painting techniques to create a verdigris-like finish on ceramic pots to Migs Dawson (c) and Dorothy Meyerman (r).

Horticultural News

Ask Rose Green

Q. My Eugenias have little blister-like bumps on the leaves. What is the problem?

A. The Eugenias are infected with the Eugenia Psyllid. A psyllid is related to the aphid and damages plants by sucking the plant sap. The blisters on the leaves are galls, caused by the psyllid feeding on and laying eggs in the leaves. Severe infestations will result in defoliation.

Psyllids should be treated at the first sign of the insect. Spray with a systemic insecticide containing the chemical acephate. Repeat the application in 2 weeks. In addition, prune the Eugenias lightly, fertilize with a balanced fertilizer and water regularly.

Q. When should I divide my Amaryllis?

A. Division of Amaryllis plants should be done between October and January. Be careful of the roots while digging, damaged roots will inhibit flowering in the subsequent year. Begin weekly applications of a balanced liquid fertilizer after the foliage is 8 inches long and continue until the flowers fade.

Q. Is there any tree that can be planted in a bottomless 2 foot planter? Also, it must not produce surface roots.

A. Geijera parviflora (Australian Willow) will fill those requirements.

Q. What can I plant for privacy along a chain-link fence?

A. Try Bougainvillea, Oleander, Arbutus unedo (Strawberry Tree) or Aleppo Pine.

The Black-crowned Night Heron perches on the LASCA Lagoon bridge.

"What bird is that?"

This question is frequently heard in the area of the LASCA Lagoon where both the adult and immature Black-crowned Night-Herons are one of the most noticed and yet unknown birds to Arboretum visitors.

The adult is sleek black, gray and white with fanciful streamers off the back of the head. The immature bird has a streaked tan and brown breast and darker brown back and wings with white spots. From the first spring all adults and immatures have a piercing red eye. The size and stocky silhouette of the Night-Heron should prevent confusion in identity with other members of the Heron family that are sometimes seen at the lagoon, such as the smaller Green-backed Heron.

Night-Herons are found perching in the trees around the lagoon and pond, on railings and in and along reeds, stalking their next meal. A favorite is catfish.

There has been a notable increase in Night-Herons at the Arboretum in the last ten years, although they do not breed here. As they are quite predatory it is possible that they are responsible for the decline in the American Coot population and the recent absence of Ruddy Ducks in our lagoon.

The Arboretum, with its varied habitat and bodies of water, offers temporary refuge for many types of migrating birds in spring and fall and a seasonal home to others. Fall migration is beginning and, with it, the ever-present hopes for great sightings and new species to add to "The Arboretum Bird List" of approximately 200 species. This list may be found at the Visitor's Center at the entrance. Field Guides to all the U.S. birds are available in the gift shop.

Birder's Note: The Arboretum Gift Shop has a selection of bird books including: "Birds of North America", Robbins, Brunn, Zim, Singer, $9.95; "World Birds", Brian P. Martin, $19.95; "Hummingbirds, Their Life and Behavior, A Photographic Study of the North America Species", text by Esther Quesada Tyrrell, photographs by Robert A. Tyrrell, $35.00.

Bird walks continue on the first Sunday of the month at 8:00 am.

Historical News

Through the work of Foundation members, Mary Atkinson (shown above) and Mary Ann Johnson, the Don Benito chapter of the Questers donated the funds to reupholster two chairs and a large rocker in the Queen Anne Cottage. Both the Don Benito and the El Molino chapters of the Questers, a group founded to support the preservation of historical landmarks, have made donations to enhance the Arboretum's historical collections.

Funds from the Arboretum Preservation Fund were used to purchase this Brussels carpet in the Peacock Feather pattern for the Queen Anne Cottage. Proceeds from the annual Queen Anne Christmas Open House are contributed to the Preservation Fund, used to restore and enhance the buildings in the Historical Section.
